

Many Details Discussed by Town Council

Levelling of Sports Ground Debated—Would Provide a Much Needed Sports Stadium

Regular meeting was held on Tuesday evening. Present, Mayor Pattinson, Councillors White, Antrobus, Kerr, Chapman and Balloch. Absent, Councillor Atkinson.

A circular letter from the provincial government stated that the provincial and Federal governments had reached a new agreement regarding relief. The senior governments would each pay 40 per cent. of the relief costs, the municipality to pay 20 per cent. It was also agreed by the senior governments that they would inspect the financial statement of all municipalities, and those showing a favorable cash reserve would have to absorb the full 100 per cent. relief costs. So great has been the outcry against such injustice that an emergency meeting of all Alberta municipalities was held called at Edmonton on Oct. 2. Mayor Pattinson was delegated to attend.

A letter was received from Edmonton, in reply to the council's letter pointing out the injustice of the townspeople being assessed 100 per cent. and those residents outside the incorporated area being assessed only 66 and two-thirds per cent. The government's officers stated they realized the difficulty but declared that it had been passed by the legislature and had to be adhered to.

The council will ask the department to list the duties of a medical health officer and state the services to be expected for the remuneration given. It will also be pointed out to the Department that 95 per cent. of the town's people contract for medical attention through reason of being miners or miners' dependents.

Dr. Claxton presented a statement re medical attention to members of Dañyluk family and one Malanchuk. He is to be notified that they are covered by contract.

An application was received from Wm. Gardiner to be placed on the relief roll.

Mrs. Volland asked council the reason why her relief allowance for the month had been reduced. The council informed her the reason.

The local branch of the Red Cross requested the council to choose a councillor to represent it on a committee. It was found that Mayor Pattinson and Councillor Chapman are already

Canada's Political Leaders Stand United in Work to Help Britain

National conscription of manpower, wealth and industry was urged by John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, LEFT. First of the opposition groups to offer his support to the government in any effort to aid Britain was Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative leader, CENTRE. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, RIGHT, contends the Dominion can best serve Great Britain in the present conflict by becoming an empire arsenal and food depot, and, at the same time, send a volunteer force of fighting airmen to help the mother country.

taking an active part in the branch and they were delegated. Coleman Light & Water Co. stated they were making arrangements for the installation of light in the Fred Smalek home.

A letter was also received from International Coal Co. that an area 340' x 270' had been levelled on the sports field. To cover the ground a depth of 8' 2300 yards of clay would be necessary. John Salvador tendered for the job at a cost of $920. This did not include levelling. The Works and Property committee were authorized to investigate.

Joe Stevenson questioned the council's power to permit a person to build on the recreation grounds in the vicinity of Crows Nest lake. According to official records the council of Coleman and Blairmore had been given a 21-years lease by the provincial government with several restrictions. It was moved that the government cancel the lease and tax all properties on the ground.

Reports from Edmonton on samples of water sent there last month stated that the water was favorable.

The auditor's report was read and the town's finances were found to be in a favorable position as at June 30, 1939.

Three by-laws were given third readings. They were by-law 140 re penalty on taxes; by-law 141 re purchase of land in West Coleman, and by-law 142 re grants made by the town.

Secretary E. Bernard asked for leave of absence during the remainder of the war. He was a former member of the R.C.M.P. and has been instructed to report to Lethbridge division immediately. He was granted leave and given a written promise that the position would be his on his return. Miss A. Halliwell, former secretary, was appointed on a month to month contract at a salary of $75 monthly.

Should Pay License Fee

Included among those who left for the opening of Alberta University this week were Ian Smith, Jerry McIntyre, Miss Muriel Naylor, Frank Sharp, Robert Emmerson. They are taking up studies in various departments.

W. Lonsbury Honored

Prior to leaving for Calgary to join the Highlanders, William Lonsbury was the guest of honor at several parties of young people. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Price entertained in his honor on Sept. 16; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Huffman on Sept. 18, and the girls of the First Aid class of St. John Ambulance Association made him a presentation as a token of appreciation for his services as instructor. It is likely his experience in First Aid work for many years in Coleman will prove of value in war service.

Reason for Objection

An objection was voiced to the town council on allowing non-descript types of dwellings to be built at Crows Nest Lake. Originally leased by the government for park purposes to the towns of Blairmore and Coleman, it now has the appearance of a dump. It should never have been allowed to be used as a squatter's resort. Summer cottages are alright, but a look at some of the places there convinces one they are not summer cottages.

Red Cross Executive Prepare Campaign

Supplies Will be Distributed as Soon as Instructions Received from Headquarters—Membership Campaign to Proceed.

An executive meeting of Coleman branch of the Red Cross Society was held on Friday evening, with the following present: Mayor Pattinson, president; Mrs. Arthur E. Graham, secretary; Mrs. W. L. Rippon, vice-president; Mrs. H. Claxton, Wilfred Dutil, T. McCloy and H. T. Halliwell.

The ladies lodge of the Italian Society sent in the names of Mrs. Anna Lant and Mrs. G. Aristoni as their representatives on the general committee; the men's lodge of the Italian Society sent the names of John Salvador and Angelo Toppino, and the L. O. B. A. sent the name of Margaret E. Reid.

A motion by T. McCloy was passed to the effect that the executive be a canvassing committee for the entire town. They will add to their number in order to make easier the work.

During Mrs. Graham's absence for two weeks, Mrs. Claxton will act as secretary.

In the course of discussion on a report on 1938 activities of the Red Cross Society it was disclosed that Coleman Junior Red Cross was the oldest in the history of Alberta branches, having been active for nearly 18 years. At present it is headed by Miss A. Yuill of Cameron School. Every year the children have put on a special effort to raise funds.

W. Dutil, treasurer, was appointed convenor of a committee to arrange the towns into zones or districts for the canvassing campaign. It would be appreciated if all willing to contribute would leave a dollar with Mr. Dutil as membership fee.

Hoyle—Hedberg Wedding

On Wednesday, Sept. 27, a quiet wedding took place at St. Alban's church when Alma Hedberg, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hedberg, became the bride of Gilbert Hoyle, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Hoyle, Rev. J. Hague officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of mauve and over taffets, with matching jacket, and white accessories, carrying a bouquet of Talisman roses and carnations. Miss Mary Hoyle, the bridesmaid, chose pale green taffets with white accessories and carried carnations and sweet peas. The groom was attended by his brother Wilfred. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, when members of the family and close friends gathered to wish the couple success. The toast to the bride was given by Mr. John Graham, and ably responded to by the groom.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle left by motor for Spokane, the bride looking charming in a suit of Old Rose. Upon their return they will take up residence in Coleman.

Everybody's War

For the first time in history Canada has declared war against another country—not a war against the German people who, in the main are probably as peace loving a people as are the Canadians, but against the authority in charge of the government of Germany; in short, against the dictator, Herr Hitler.

When Canada went into the great war of 1914-18 she had not assumed the full status of nationhood and although this country, at that time, followed the lead of the Motherland willingly and even with enthusiasm, she did not have the breadth of choice that is hers to-day.

This time Canada girds up her loins as a belligerent with all the force and power of a sovereign nation in her own right. She enters the conflict as a co-partner with and of the same status as Great Britain. She voiced her decision to do so of her own volition and expressed her decision in the democratic way, through her parliament, the symbol of her democratic form of government which the people of this country have decided to uphold against aggression.

What is more, the decision of Canada to participate actively in this war, as voiced through parliament, was unanimous. All political parties represented in both houses joined forces in uttering the decree which formally lined up this country with Britain, France and Poland against the dictator who is apparently willing to sacrifice millions of his own people as well as millions of the subjects of the democracies to enable him to satisfy his lust for power and conquest.

Insofar as Canada is concerned, she has decided unanimously to play the role of a belligerent in a war to stop Hitler from continuance of a campaign of international blackmail and terrorism. The people of this country have said, along with the people of France, Great Britain, Australia and other units of the British Empire that it is high time to call a halt to the kind of thing which has constituted a continual menace to the peace of the world for the last two or three years.

The people of Canada, along with the people of the other democracies now in the fight, are peace loving. They are anxious to be allowed to go about their own business, to be able to make progress in the fields of agriculture and industry without hindrance, enjoy their social life and the happiness and contentment which are rightfully theirs. But the people of this country are not willing to buy peace at any price. They are not prepared to sacrifice the liberty and freedom won for them by their forebears. It must be a peace with honor—a peace which carries the right of self-government for Canada and all those nations whose people believe in that high privilege.

War's Responsibilities

Canada, having decided of her own free will and with all the authority of nationhood in her own right to engage in this conflict, the people of this country have, for the first time in their history, assumed all the responsibilities which devolve upon people who declare war upon others.

As a result of her own decision, as voiced through the nation's assembly, the people have decreed that, for the present at any rate, they will wage this fight on a voluntary basis and this entails upon every individual in the country the responsibility of doing his or her utmost to do his or her share to the best of his or her ability and in the manner in which he or she may be best fitted.

Such an effort is going to entail sacrifices, but the people of this country have announced that they are willing to make the necessary sacrifices, no matter what they may be or how onerous they may be.

In this country, it is everybody's war. The duty of prosecuting the war with the utmost vigor is not confined to those who volunteer their services in the military, naval or air forces, either on the battlefield in Europe, if it should be decided to send an expeditionary force overseas, or to serve in the second line of defence on this side of the Atlantic. Nor is it confined to the members of the veterans' and nursing organizations who recently responded so nobly to the call for registration of volunteers for emergency services in this country, if and when required.

No, in war time, the call is much wider than that. It embraces every man and woman and even the youth of the country. Agriculture, industry and the business of the country generally must be carried on with the maximum of energy and efficiency with the winning of the war as speedily as possible as the single objective.

The job in hand necessitates a single purpose guiding the activities of all our people, whether they be engaged in the field, the factory or the counting house; whether they be working in government employ or teaching in the class room; whether they be business executives or drawing pay as artisans or common laborers.

No one knows how long this struggle is going to be. No one knows yet what resources of finance, industry and man power may have to be drawn upon. No one knows what forces may ultimately be arrayed against the people of this country before victory can be claimed.

If for no other reason, these unknown factors dictate the necessity for preparedness and for the wholehearted and active support of all the forces this country can command in making these preparations and in waging this war. The war is a war for every Canadian.

University Closed

Work At Famous School In Heidelberg Is Discontinued Indefinitely

Heidelberg University, world-famed seat of learning which began to decline following the advent of the Nazi regime, will remain closed indefinitely, it was announced today.

Only five universities in this country will continue classes during the winter semester. They are Berlin, Leipzig, Jena, Munich and Vienna. The five were deemed sufficient to handle the number of students during wartime.

Issue Is The Same

The issue can be stated as Lincoln stated it long ago, says the Toronto Star. With the substitution, now, of "war" for "nation," his decision is this: "That this world, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

New Marching Song

British Troops Have Adopted "Heigh-Ho" From Snow White

The old war songs like "Tipperary" and "Long, Long Trail" are still being sung in England, but the most popular tune among the British troops right now is "Heigh-Ho" from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

"The soldiers have changed the original script to read 'Heigh-Ho, Heigh-Ho, away to war we go.'"

Royal Precedence

Very few people, except those actually at Court, says the London Daily Sketch, know of the existence of a list printed on white cardboard in booklet form marked "Private" and headed—"Precedence of the Royal Family to be observed at Court." Approved by the King, this clearly sets out both Separate and Joint Precedence—the latter meaning when accompanied by husband or wife who may be of lesser rank.

Kitchener Of Khartoum

Romance With Pretty Irish Girl Spoiled His Life

In an old grey farmhouse in County Kildare, miles from the nearest town, lives the woman Lord Kitchener of Khartoum wanted to marry, writes E. Travers-Futchen in the London Sunday Dispatch.

All through his later life he was reputed to be a woman-hater. He never married. He was brief to the point of rudeness with women he had to meet. But his love for Miss Katie Kelly, farmer's daughter, whom he met when stationed at the Curragh in the late seventies, was never forgotten.

Now their story can be revealed—for the first time.

"My Dear Little Katie," he called her in his letters to her after they were parted. "I am only happy when I breathe the fresh air as she does," he once told a friend.

With her, his sternness vanished. The rather solemn young officer relaxed, became gay, as they rode together down the green lanes that led from her home at Hill of Rathbride, near the great military plain where he was serving.

But there was a shadow in their lives. Miss Kelly's mother disapproved of young Kitchener paying court to her daughter. Indeed, she did not approve at all of their friendship. For the Kellys were Catholics—and devout ones, and Kitchener was a Protestant. It was on that rock that the romance was to founder.

Now a little old lady of nearly 80, she lives alone, her only companion a single maid-servant. In the ivy-covered farmhouse where the great soldier came to visit her.

The garden is overgrown with weeds. The paddock where they jumped the splendid hunters for which Miss Kelly and her brother were famous, needs mowing. Hens and ducks are the only inhabitants of the stables. No laughing valets come up the lane to Hill of Rathbride now.

Salaries Paid Teachers

Claimed That More Than Half The Teachers In Canada Subsist

On Lowest Level

The depressing conditions that exist in the teaching profession throughout the Dominion, as revealed in a report of the Research Committee of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, presented at the opening session in Montreal recently, cannot but cause widespread dissatisfaction. The statistics presented show the following astonishing facts:

More than 10,000 teachers in Canada are paid less than the mean legal minimum for female juveniles in industry.

More than 19,000 teachers are paid less than the mean legal minimum for experienced women in industry.

About 25,000 teachers are paid less than the girl, who binds the textbooks.

Nearly 37,000 teachers, or about 62 per cent. of all Canadian pay teachers, are paid less than the mean minimum for unskilled factory labor.

About 55,500 teachers, or more than 85 per cent. of the total number, are paid less than skilled union workmen.

The committee, in demanding that in the national interest a survey should be made of the Canadian teaching personnel in terms of the monetary value placed upon their services, says: "To put it bluntly, more than half the teachers of Canada live at the lowest level of self-supporting penurious existence, and it is time that more light was thrown upon their condition."—The Montreal Star.

No More Salients

Line Is To Be Kept Straight In This War

One new principle has been adopted in the new war which will make a difference between this and the last conflict. It has been decided not to indulge in any more salients. They are akin to what is known in boxing circles as "sticking out your chin." They invite attack. The amount of life lost in making and defending salients in the last war has taught a costly lesson. The line is to be kept straight and all effort is to be directed towards a general advance.

Paintings On Sugar Panels Decorated Royal Wedding Cake

Had the Duke and Duchess of Kent gone to Australia in October as planned before the outbreak of war, it was expected that exquisite little paintings on sugar of Scottish castles and Grecian scenes would accompany them. These formed the decorations of their wedding cake, says the London Daily Sketch. Mr. Bryant emerged from his retirement at the age of 80 to help decorate the cake. He and his son had between them seen nearly a century of service with the biscuit firm that received the Royal order. It took them six weeks to complete the cake, which was iced behind locked doors. When eventually it was delivered at Buckingham Palace it so delighted Queen Mary that she asked if the painted panels could be removed instead of it was cut. Queen Mary had the little sugar panels mounted under glass, and they are thus in perfect preservation.

A man who has been touring Europe in search of "International Nobodies" arrived in London last month. He was Clarence Gilchrist, an American sculptor, who has spent the last three years sculpturing the heads of "men in the street" all over the world. Mr. Gilchrist's method is to find typical "bends," as he calls them, in each country he visits, and he doesn't care whether they are statesmen or dustmen. In the last three years he has visited some 20 different parts of his own country, and has been all over South America and Canada.

Cheap Gasoline

German Planes Must Use Gas That Diminishes Speed And Carrying Power

Germany may lose the war because she lacks "anti-knock" gasoline for her fighting planes, a well-known chemist said in Boston.

"Not enemy guns, but the 'knocking' of her airplane motors will toll the doom of Germany in this war," declared Dr. Gustav Egloff, research director for an (Universal) oil products company of Chicago, in an interview.

Attending the 98th meeting of the American Chemical Society, Egloff said Britain and France had facilities for developing "superior" gasolines from crude petroleum products obtained from the wells of Persia.

"On the other hand," he said, "Germany has principally the gasoline she obtains from coal—a product which not only diminishes the speed and carrying power of planes, but cuts down their life span."

Find Fossil Of Interesting Specimen In The Georgian Bay District

G. G. Albery, town clerk of Meaford, Ont., in the Georgian Bay district, said he had discovered the fossil of a monster crab along the shoreline near the blue mountains of Collingwood.

The body of the fossil is approximately three inches in thickness and the parts of the body found weigh nearly 60 pounds. The fossil is known as a "shurlian euryterpid," or "monster crab," and its original life size was six feet in length. Scientists estimate the Shurlian age was approximately 150,000,000 years ago and lasted 4,000,000 years. It is believed the region where the fossil was found was once part of an island seen when the Gulf of Mexico extended north over this part of the continent.

Twenty Members Left

Only 20 members of the present British House of Commons were at Westminster on that hectic day 25 years ago at the outbreak of the war, says the London Daily Sketch. Lord Winterston, Lloyd George, Sir Samuel Hoare, Mr. Churchill, Colonel Wedgewood, Lord Wolmer, Mr. Benn, Mr. Clynnes, Mr. Amery and the Speaker are among others who will vividly recall that dramatic day in 1914.

British Forces Are Ready For Action On Western Front

London.—The British expeditionary force was described as ready to go into action with the French army on the western front.

The readiness of the British Tommy coincided with a statement by the British government in reply to Premier Mussolini's suggestion of a truce that it would fight until Europe is saved from fear of Hitlerism.

Announcement the army is moving into position and consolidating its forces came in an eye-witness story issued by the ministry of information.

Other moves taken by the government to perfect its war machine were:—

1. Civilian flyers were notified to stand ready for duty with the Royal Air Force.

2. E. Blumher, general manager of the Southern Railway, was appointed director-general of transportation at the war office. He will be responsible for all military transportation by sea or land.

3. Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, one of the first half dozen flyers to cross enemy lines in the last war, was recalled from Kenya where he was sent in 1937 as governor.

Sir Robert is credited with having put the defence of British East Africa colonies in a high state of readiness and is slated for a new and important task. He started flying in 1912 and was in charge of the air defence of Britain in 1933-35.

The notification for air force service went to men under 28 years of age who hold first rate licenses in the civil guard—formed by the government in peace time to provide flying instructions for civilians.

Four other classes, including civil guard flyers up to 40, were designated for a later call. The guard supplements the regular air force reserves already summoned.

Peace suggestions in Premier Mussolini's speech met little warmth here. A statement issued by the ministry of information said "official circles understand and appreciate the sincerity of Signor Mussolini's motives, and the prime minister has already expressed his appreciation of what Signor Mussolini attempted to do prior to the outbreak of war to reach a solution.

"The suggestion that by not spreading the conflict further, in view of the Russian 'fait accompli', Great Britain and France have compromised their moral justification for attempting to annul the German 'fait accompli' is not understood here."

The official war correspondent, in the material issued by the ministry of information, said the expeditionary force "is still in the stage of moving up to its positions and concentrating its forces preparatory to going into action."

This was the first official indication the forces actually were preparing to go into action.

"Along the straight, tree-bordered roads of France," the war correspondent said, "the army traffic moves along in a procession that is practically continuous."

In one area, "with music playing and the Union Jack flying, the troops made a triumphant entry," and "a whole village turned out."

In the British camps in France "a homelike atmosphere" prevails," the reporter said. Socks and underwear newly and ineptly washed hung on every bush and men off duty spent their time picking blackberries.

The ministry also issued a communique on the Royal Air Force in France.

"The Royal Air Force has already established itself in France," it said. "The men are in fine spirits and are enjoying the novelty of conditions in which they are living."

"Most of the men are in billets and everywhere they have been received with kindness and hospitality."

In town, village and farmhouse the people have done everything possible to make their guests at home.

"One French colonel turned out of bed at 1 o'clock in the morning to make sure that a Royal Air Force detachment which had just arrived should be comfortably housed."

"Throughout the journey the air men had been shown the same kindness. When the train stopped at wayside stations the villagers brought out hot water for shaving and washing and then raised their own orchards to provide the men with apples and pears."

"The Royal Air Force is drawing food from the French army, supplemented by rations from home. At the outset, the men, not for the first time in our history, found the French cooking novel after the more solid English fare, but Royal Air Force cooks have now arrived and all is well."

Nazi Resources

Party Leaders Deposit Private Fortunes In Neutral Countries

London.—The Daily Mail said Adolf Hitler's Nazi party leaders have deposited private fortunes amounting to "millions of pounds" in banks of neutral countries.

"The newspaper said cash and securities amounting to £3,334,000 have been deposited abroad 'in the names of Hitler's seven leading henchmen, Von Ribbentrop, Goering, Goebbels, Hees, Himmler, Ley and Streicher. In addition they have taken out life insurance policies for £2,640,000, making a total of £6,974,000."

The Mail added: "Hitler appears to be the only Nazi leader who has no credits to his name either in New York banks or elsewhere."

"Secret investigation in financial circles in London, Paris and New York" was said by the Mail to have revealed the financial operations of Nazi party leaders.

Theatres Again Open

London.—Things are getting livelier on London's war time entertainment front. Motion picture theatres now remain open until 10 p.m. except in the swanky west end, where they close at 6 p.m. Variety theatres in the west end and suburban playhouses have re-opened. So have suburban dog-race tracks. Regent park zoo again is admitting visitors

Contraband Seized

Britain Takes 110,000 Tons Of Goods During One Week

London.—The government announced 110,000 tons of contraband goods were seized during the week ended Sept. 16.

The total value of goods was estimated at more than £500,000 (about $2,000,000).

This brought to nearly 200,000 tons the amount of contraband seized since the outbreak of the war.

Bulk of the goods was manganese ore, petroleum products, iron ore and aluminum ore.

The communique said "some misconception appears to exist" regarding seizure of neutral ships.

"The position is that normally only cargoes of suspected contraband are seized and that as soon as these have been unloaded the ships carrying them are allowed to proceed on their voyages."

"No neutral ship has been seized since the outbreak of hostilities."

"Even ships which had loaded their cargo since would normally only be seized if there was evidence that they were being used with the knowledge of the owners for carriage of contraband to the enemy."

Serve With Allies

Kermit Roosevelt Reported To Be Joining British Ministry Of Shipping

New York.—No surprise was expressed by Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt when informed of a report her husband, son of former president Theodore Roosevelt, would serve the allies in the war as an official in the British ministry of shipping.

"I know how strongly he feels about the importance of the allies winning the war," she said. "As soon as it was declared he made every effort to get abroad immediately. I had a cable from him that he had landed safely, but he hasn't told me directly about the other matter."

Roosevelt, whose brother Quentin was killed in the last war, will be 50 next month.

He served in the British army in the last war, rising to the rank of captain.

Should Increase Trade

Sterling Exchange In Canada More Favorable To Bermuda

New York.—Bermuda's imports from Canada are likely to increase by 10 per cent, or about $1,000,000 annually as long as sterling exchange in Canada favors the island's importers, B. J. Howard Trott, member of the Bermuda legislature and chairman of the wartime food supply board, said here.

Currently, the pound is worth $4.43 in Canada, compared with $3.91½ in the United States.

The increase would cover a wide range of imports, notably fruit, vegetables, canned goods and cured meats, he said.

Terrorists Sentenced

London.—Convicted under the explosive substances act on charges in connection with bombings, four alleged Irish Republican Army terrorists were sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment. They were Ella Woods, Rose Conway, Ann Conway and Cary Jones. John Woods, husband of Ella Woods, was acquitted.

IRE'S FINANCE MINISTER

Sean O'Kelly, one of De Valera's staunchest supporters, has been named Minister of Finance in the revised Irish Cabinet.

Send Air Force

Australia Plans To Send Six Full Aviation Squadrons Before End Of Year

Canberra.—The Australian government will send to Great Britain trained crews, excluding ground staffs, for six full aviation squadrons before the end of the year, Prime Minister R. G. Menzies told the house of representatives.

The expeditionary air force will comprise about 550 men, including 150 pilots, 250 crew and 150 administrative staffs and specialists. If later on a ground staff for the force follows the total would be 3,000.

The crews will man four bombing squadrons and two squadrons of two-seater fighter planes, Mr. Menzies said.

"After the closest consultation with Great Britain," the premier told the house, "we are satisfied that the greatest assistance we can render is the provision of trained air crews."

"Despatch of this force will not reduce Australia's air force by a single aircraft and will leave ample personnel to man the present air fleet and any aircraft we may build or buy in the future."

Carries Many Passengers

Trans-Canada Air Lines Operates Fifteen Transport Planes

Winnipeg.—The big silver transport planes operated by Trans-Canada Air Lines carried 13,583 paying passengers from April 1, when T.C.A. passenger service was inaugurated, until Aug. 31, W. A. Straith, district traffic manager, told members of a service club here.

The average distance travelled by passengers was 577 miles, he added.

During the same period T.C.A. planes carried 659,748 pounds of mail and 16½ tons of express. Fifteen transport planes now are operated by Canada's national air line.

Was Prepared

London.—The brighter side of today's war news:

A cardboard gas mask container evacuated to a London woman belonging to the country and found on a Suffolk village street bore an inscription, "We must be prepared."

Inside it were a ball of yarn, some knitting powder puff, compact, mirror, chocolate bar, handkerchief, letters, snapshots and the respirator.

MAPPING BRITISH ARMY MOVES

While the allies hammer away at the German defences on the western front, British military strategists study a map in the war office in London. Those pictured are General Sir Edmund Ironside, right, chief of the imperial defence staff, and General the Viscount Gort, commander-in-chief of the field forces.

Supreme War Council In Agreement On All War Policies

London.—Great Britain heard momentous news as the third week of her war with Germany neared its close. There were these developments:

1. The supreme war council of Great Britain and France met in England and announced "complete agreement" on the course to be followed. It was indicated co-ordinating and perfecting arrangements for munitions and supplies occupied a major part of the meeting.

2. The ministry of information told newsmen Britain had the first German submarine attack licked with comparatively few losses herself.

3. Sir Samuel Hoare, lord privy seal, in a national broadcast suggested the time was coming when none would be unemployed.

4. Over the air waves from France came a statement by Jean Giraudoux, French general commissioner of information, that Germany suffered loss of 150,000 killed, wounded or prisoners in the Polish campaign, with 400 to 600 aeroplanes destroyed and 600 to 700 pilots killed. Germany is at a strong disadvantage as compared with the last war, the French spokesman declared.

5. The Press association announced the principal political parties had agreed there would be no British parliamentary or municipal elections while the war continues.

6. The first victory for the Royal Air Force on the western front was announced in a government communique. It was also the first official indication British planes on the western front have been active in other than reconnaissance operations.

Sir Samuel Hoare asked employers to quit hiring their help on the ground "too many workers have been dismissed." He urged:

"Get them back. You will want many of them again before the world is much older."

The lord privy seal cautioned the people to be economical and warned that the British war budget would make them so. However, he emphasized economy did not mean refusing to buy anything or seeking to dodge bills already owed.

The government, he said, would take all possible steps against profiteering.

Japanese Campaign

Would Lessen The Holdings Of Britain And France In China

Tokyo.—Foreign observers saw in developments a Japanese campaign was under way to lessen the holdings and influence of Great Britain and France in China while they are preoccupied by war with Germany.

Indications of this trend was seen in a resolution adopted by the Japan Bar Association declaring presence in China of troops and warships of the European belligerents was illegal.

The resolution said since both Japan and the Japanese sponsored governments in China were neutral in regard to the European war they had the right to ask withdrawal of armed forces of belligerents.

To Make Restrictions On Recruiting Of Skilled Workmen

Ottawa.—Recruiting of the Canadian Active Service Force will not be permitted to strip Canadian industry, agriculture and economic life of skilled or key men, according to a statement issued by Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of national defence.

He said recruiting officers had been instructed that skilled tradesmen were not to be enlisted except in the classes to which they belong and then only in the numbers required.

University graduates in medicine, engineering or other scientific or technical professions are not to be enlisted. This applies also to former cadets of the Royal Military College and the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, bankers and accountants.

If heads of factories or other industries find key members of their staffs are being taken unnecessarily they are asked to communicate with local military, naval or air force authorities concerned.

Following is the text of Mr. Rogers' statement:

Under a system of voluntary service in the armed forces there is a probability, having regard to the character of the Canadian people, that many men with the highest qualifications of all sorts will seek active service. The problem is thus presented of ensuring that industry is not deprived unduly of the skilled engineers, mechanics and other trained workers, on whom rapid expansion of production depends, by reason of their enlistment in or appointment to commissions in the armed forces.

The department of national defence, anticipating this problem, has placed restrictions on the enlistment of certain classes of workers, who will be required in large numbers for the prosecution of Canada's war effort in the production of munitions and other industrial supplies. These restrictions apply to those who are skilled in particular trades or crafts or who have other qualifications such as university training in medicine, engineering, agriculture and other sciences that can be used to advantage in the national interest.

It is becoming more clearly understood that, in addition to the material requirements of Canada's forces, very large numbers of men must be needed from Canada to supplement production in Great Britain and other parts of the empire. It is in recognition of these anticipated requirements of skilled workers in industry that the department of national defence has issued instructions to recruiting officers providing that skilled tradesmen are not to be enlisted in a military unit except in the classes and then only in the numbers required by the particular unit establishment. It is provided that every effort must be made to place men in those corps for which they are best adapted by their civil vocations.

As regards eligibility of recruits the department has also ruled that graduates of Canadian or other universities or colleges in the medical, engineering or other scientific or technical professions are not to be enlisted. The same provision applies also to ex-cadets of the Royal Military College and to ex-cadets who hold proper certificates from the Canadian Officers' Training Corps; bankers and chartered and other accountants are also included.

While the foregoing statements apply to recruiting for the army, similar regulations apply to enlistments in the navy and air force.

In cases where heads of factories or other industries feel that key members of their staffs have been taken by the military authorities unnecessarily, they should communicate at once with the recruiting officer in charge of the unit in which their men have been placed. Should their representations to him not result in a satisfactory solution of their problem, they may apply to the minister, who is taken up by the factory head with the local army, navy or air authorities concerned.

Says Canada Will Stand Firmly By Britain In Crisis

London.—Viscount Maugham, who was in Canada when the crisis broke, told the house of lords he had found people in all parts of the Dominion "absolutely fixed in their determination to stand by this country if the crisis which then existed should lead to war."

The peer, who was lord chancellor prior to the cabinet reorganization at the outbreak of war, said he came to certain conclusions which "might have surprised Herr Hitler."

There was no doubt whatever of the determination of the Canadian people, Lord Maugham added.

"Canada's high resolve to assist this country in war against Germany," he said, "was a determination by a free nation, and that again is true of the other nations."

"So far as I know there is no example in all history so striking and so moving as the example set by those dominions overseas, unless in 1914."

Cheers greeted Lord Snell, Labor, when he referred to the "rally to the cause of freedom of the great free peoples of the British commonwealth."

"Apart from the material and physical help they can give, their recognition that we can do no other things sustains and comforts us far more than they can know," Lord Snell said.

"The old mother of free peoples cannot be either wrong or friendliness when she is so valiantly supported by her free children."

"On my visit to Canada I came to certain conclusions which I think might have surprised Hitler," Lord Maugham said. "I met there a large number of people, including the prime minister and a majority of the government and had long talks with them about the present crisis."

"One and all, whether of one religion or another or of one race or another, were absolutely fixed in their determination to stand by this country if the crisis which then existed should lead to war, and I came back to this country with a message from the prime minister and government to that effect."

The invention of skywriting is attributed to Major John Clifford Savage, a pioneer English flier, who has promoted it for nearly a score of years.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

UNDER the War Charities Act it is an offence to make or attempt to make any collection for any War Charity Fund unless with the authorization in writing of the officer duly designed to authorize collections for such War Charity Fund. (see Lethbridge Herald Sept. 23.) The purpose of the Act is to prevent shows or socials being put on for personal gain under the ostensible plea that they are for war or patriotic purposes. To prevent this there are strict regulations as to the keeping of books, proper accounting, auditing by some approved person or persons, with all monies received by the War Charity Fund to be paid into a separate account at such bank or banks as may be specified.

AS the war progresses, there will be need for united effort to back up the soldiers and provide them with comforts. The Red Cross Society is not local in its scope, for it embraces every country. An enrolment will be made of every soldier who leaves Coleman, and efforts will be made by the local branch to maintain contact with the men while they are away. It is our war as much as it is Britain's and France's, despite what the isolationists of the United States may say.

NOW that we have surfaced highway between the Pass towns, we can express our thanks to the Highways Department that it is at last an accomplished fact. But the people of the Pass towns have paid well for it in licenses and gasoline taxes, so they are just getting some of their own back. Figure the amounts paid in the past ten years, and the cost per mile of the surfacing, and it will easily be seen that it leaves a great big margin in favor of the automobile owners. The campaign of town councils and boards of trade has at last borne fruit, therefore we can take a ride in the evening or any other time without being half blinded by dust and made nervous through fear of colliding with others or running down pedestrians.

ANYONE who toots his horn too much is likened unto an empty box car; it makes a helluva lot more noise than a full one. Yes, indeed!

JUDGING from the intensive training this week by boys and girls for the high school athletic meet at Blairmore tomorrow, there should be some records coming to Coleman. Some of the high jumps almost made onlookers gasp, and small boys and girls just gaped open-mouthed as the older ones went through their paces. Such training is a good thing, and really there should be more of it during the year instead of a special sport just before the annual event. However, here's wishing Coleman entrants lots of success.

COLEMAN people are a docile lot, generally speaking. They pay taxes and taxes without much squealing, but this year it has been a bit too heavy for some with the increases that have come into effect. Many places during the past year or two have shown a decrease, but Coleman's has kept steadily rising presumably on the principle that you can crowd on all the traffic will bear. It is getting to the point where it is almost unbearable; for the humble taxpayer, if this thing keeps on, will eventually be crushed beneath the load, or will rise on his two feet and do some plain talking. Too heavy taxation eventually defeats itself. It is time to seriously consider the ability of the ratepayers to pay.

WHEN a storekeeper makes a mistake probably only himself and the customers know it. But let a newspaper make a mistake, and the whole world knows it. And usually the editor is given the "raspberry" very soon after his paper appears in print. So, true to form, last Friday morning a lady for whom the editor has a lot of respect and good feeling, breezed into the office and before we had time to say "good morning" told us we had made an awful blunder. The editorial face blushed with shame, wondering what dire "faux pas," or as the late Marie Dressler would say, "fox's paw," we were guilty of, and prepared to hear the worst.

WELL, it was in the report of the Red Cross organization meeting two weeks ago. The typesetter (it's easy to blame it on him) put it up that the provincial government had in 1918 given $600 towards an emergency hospital for the Flu epidemic. Now our original copy had expressly stated "provincial headquarters," meaning of course the Red Cross. We tried to absolve ourselves from guilt and shame, but the lady would have none of it. We pointed out that at the time it was a Liberal government, thinking it would palliate her feelings, but she upped and said she had as little use for them as she had for the present government. So that indicated to us that she must have some sympathy for the party which we also have a liking for. It helped to soften the blow, and we told the lady with the complaint that we would see that ample correction and explanation was made in our next issue. So there, friends, you have the true story. To-morrow morning, we are thinking, it might be wise to stay at home or go to the woods for a walk, until any possible storm or tempestuous visits have time to blow over. You see, these errors are never discovered till the paper appears in print; then they stick out like a sore thumb.

THERE ARE creeping, suppliant individuals who will do anything to get business. Get the business, it doesn't matter how, is the policy of this type.

IF every Coleman merchant I would take some time every week, regardless of what turns up, and write an ad. on the goods he has for sale, and advertise in The Journal, it's a sure fire hit he would encourage and develop a greater share of local business. You may not get 100 per cent. of the local business, but you can at least aim to get it.

Some people's talk resembles so much froth—it's just that.

A Responsibility For Value

THE liner which has made a fast crossing of the Atlantic, ever afterwards lives under the obligation of its own record. Each successive voyage is compared, and should the liner descend into the rank of the six or seven day vessels, there would gather round its name something of disappointment. So it is with high achievement in any sphere.

A boxer who has held the world's heavyweight title and goes down to the punch from a newcomer, becomes the laughing stock of sports writers and fans. The baseball or hockey team which is at the top of the league and goes down to defeat at the hands of a little known team, becomes a target for wit. People refuse to accept anything short of perfect, once a high standard has been established.

Every business has a personality that is deep-seated. The personality of a business can't be changed by changing its nameplate or the size of its price tickets. A commissionaire at the door doesn't give a business dignity or a nameplate in bronze make it aristocratic. These are only superficialities.

Over the years EATON'S has built up an enviable reputation for value giving, and this responsibility sits heavily on our shoulders. The personality of this Company is to give Service and Value—nothing short of which is acceptable.

WEDDINGS

McGovern—Bell

On Monday morning at St. Paul's United Church Mr. Thomas McGovern, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James McGovern, of Michel, was married to Miss Marion Bell, daughter of Mr. William Bell and the late William Bell. Only the immediate friends were present. Mr. Joe Spievak was best man, and Miss Margaret Bell, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Mrs. Joe Spievak was matron of honor.

Both young people are well known and quite popular, and embark on married life with the hearty good wishes of a host of friends. In the afternoon they left for Nelson where it is likely they will reside.

Wm. Lees is expected home this week-end after spending two weeks in Vancouver.

Local News

Mr. H. Stevenson is on two weeks vacation at Vancouver.

Mrs. Arthur E. Graham is spending two weeks holiday at Nelson and Spokane.

Mrs. J. Nash was a visitor at Kimberley last week, the guest of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Blain.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Derbyshire and son Jack spent a few days at Lethbridge, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smith.

The Ladies Missionary Society of St. Paul's church recently met at the home of Mrs. Lily Fraser on Sixth street, where a very pleasant evening was spent.

Among those going to Calgary for the week-end were the Misses Mae and Alberta Phillips, Mrs. Roy Foster, Mrs. Ross Foster, Mrs. R. J. Cousins, Mrs. T. Higginbotham, Mrs. L. Richards.

Mr. G. A. Staples, division freight agent, C. P. R., Calgary, was here last Friday, in the course of a business trip over the division under his jurisdiction. 25 years ago he was stationed at Nelson, and he remembers quite a number of the earlier residents of the towns on the Crows Nest division.

For the first time in 18 years a party of lady golfers on a recent visit to Fernie Golf Club defeated the ladies there. Naturally they feel they are improving. The party from here included Mrs. Pattinson, Mrs. McBurney, Mrs. Claxton, Mrs. A. F. Short, as well as a number of ladies from Blairmore.

Correction Re Red Cross Report

Mrs. C. F. Dunlop draws attention to an error in last week's report of the Red Cross organization meeting. It was reported, incorrectly, that in 1918 the provincial government gave $600 towards an emergency hospital to cope with the influenza epidemic. It should have been provincial headquarters, of the Red Cross Society, not the government.

Billy Naylor Succeeded by Arthur Westworth

For about four years Billy Naylor has delivered The Journal weekly to the central part of town. He has now taken a step up and is employed at McBurney's drug store. His place as delivery boy will be taken by Arthur Westworth.

For West Coleman Elvino DeCocco is the delivery boy, and for East Coleman there are two boys. Pat Naylor looks after Graftontown and the Flats.

An Impression That Means Something

Smart clothes create a good impression. The wearer feels a lot better than if attired in sloppy mis-shapen clothes. So with printing; good printing creates a good impression of the firms using it. That's why Journal printing and advertising creates a good impression. Good stock is used and experienced printers do the work. Keep your home town printers busy. They spend their money here, pay taxes and contribute towards local institutions. Outsiders never help to build a town.

C. J. Tompkins Express Views
C. J. Tompkins, well known Blairmore citizen, with strong Liberal sentiments, in conversation on the political situation in the Crows Nest Pass, states that he sees no reason why there shouldn't be co-operation in provincial politics. In the past there has been co-operation among political groups, and though the war has put a temporary quietus on political controversy, there is still keen interest in the move being made to develop independent action on a co-operative basis.

Seven Teams in Senior Hockey Next Season

Schedule Calls for 112 Games to Commence About Nov. 18—Season to End About Feb. 21

On Sunday at the Palliser hotel, Calgary, two representatives of the following clubs met to discuss the senior league for 1939-40 season: Calgary, Lethbridge, Edmonton, Coleman, Turner Valley, Olds, Drumheller, Frank Abousaafy, president of Coleman Canadians, and Fred Guerdard, secretary, represented the local club.

Though the schedule calls for commencement by Nov. 18, experience of past years invariably has shown that teams not having artificial ice are unable to play on home ice. Under these conditions, it is presumed that arrangements would be made with Lethbridge for Coleman games to be played there in the event of there being no ice here in November or early December.

The appointment of referees for the season was left to the president, according to the Calgary Albertan sports review.

Coleman team has been strengthened for the coming season, and despite the war, it appears that every effort will be made by the respective clubs to put as good teams on the ice as in former years.

From the Secretary of the Red Cross Society

The executive committee thanks all who are co-operating in the work of the Society, particularly those organizations who have appointed representatives, and the Coleman Journal for the publicity donated.

They have not yet received instructions from headquarters as to the work of knitting and making up of supplies, but hope soon to do so, in which case volunteer workers will be called upon. At present the main objective will be the raising of funds through a membership drive.—L. Graham, honorary secretary.

The provincial liquor control board seized upon the increase in Federal excise taxes to boost its own profits from the liquor trade, hoisting prices far more than the amounts necessary to cover the new tax. It was computed that the increases are about 50 per cent. greater than necessary in many cases. Likely the result will be less liquor sold. A day's pay for a bottle of whiskey is more than the working man will pay.

A Wonder Waterway

Scotland's Caletonia Canal Movement To Early Engineering Skill

News of a reduction in dues on yachts passing through the Caletonia Canal has stimulated public interest in what is one of the world's loveliest waterways. Nor is the interest thus aroused confined to yachting circles, for during the summer months a passenger steamer plies along the Canal, travelling in one direction one day and back the next.

Right across Scotland from west to east stretches the Great Glen, like an enormous trench scooped out by a titanic hand, and in this trench lie three lochs called Lochy, Oich and Ness. As long ago as 1722 James Watt, the famous engineer, was employed by the Government to examine the possibility of linking up these lochs, and the sea at either end, by short stretches of canal, but it was left to his illustrious successor, Thomas Telford, to complete the survey and put the plan into effect, which was finally accomplished in 1822.

Passage through the Canal saves sea-going vessels a trip of 400 miles round the north of Scotland and incidentally takes them through some of the finest scenery Scotland has to offer. Even that portion of the journey which is through artificial channels—about 22 miles out of 60—is picturesque. In the lochs themselves the scenery is indescribably splendid. From Corraich, in the west, to Inverness, in the east, there is not a dull moment, and although as an engineering feat the Canal has long been surpassed by more modern and greater ventures, it remains an impressive monument to the engineering skill and enterprise of its time.

Would Protect Food Supply

Swiss Merchant Says Lake Tanks Safe From Bomb Attacks

Swiss householders will be able to have their own stores of food buried 120 feet below the water level of the lakes and rivers, safe from the heaviest bomb, if an ingenious scheme devised by wealthy Senator Gottlieb Duttweiler is put into practice.

Duttweiler, who is Switzerland's No. 1 provision dealer, with one business which alone has a turnover of about 60,000,000 Swiss francs, has founded a "Stock Tank Association" on co-operative lines.

The co-operative plans to sink sheet-iron tanks into the earth below lake and rivers, each tank filled with foodstuffs or raw materials. The co-operative will sell shares, the holders of which will have the right to demand repayment in goods.

Tests are said to have proved that the tanks would be safe from air attack as the water would absorb the force of any bomb. The Federal Economic Department has approved the plan.

It is said that such technical problems as how to anchor the tanks so that they are immovable, how to fill and empty them and store goods, have been satisfactorily solved.

The cost of storage is low, including amortization of the tanks. Temperature would be maintained at a constant level, so that the loss in weight would be negligible, and storage of such foodstuffs as eggs, fresh fruit, potatoes would be possible.

A Wonderful People

China Has Survived Many Calamities Throughout The Ages

The recent flooding of the Hai River in North China is reported to have drowned 10,000 people, wrecked 120,000 houses in Tientsin and caused a property loss of $400,000,000. The Hai is a comparatively small river. When the Yellow and Yangtze Rivers have gone on rampages in the past they have taken as many as 10,000,000 lives in a single flood, and China has been experiencing that sort of thing for ages.

And yet its population has continued to increase and business has gone on as usual.

A people that can stand the calamities that China's rivers have for thousands of years visited upon dwellers along their banks has what it takes to survive in this world.

Should Be Allowed To Follow Their Instincts Say Scientists

If you are left-handed, don't worry. There was a time when people regarded the use of the left hand as something not quite nice. They would use every form of persuasion to make a child use the right hand, however, unnatural it might be for him.

Now some scientists say that it is wrong to make a child turn from his instinct—whichever hand he habitually uses is the right hand for him. In fact, to compel him to change may have a serious effect upon him mentally and physically.—Roscommon Herald.

Long hair and the longer bobs are not becoming under the tin helmets and service caps of the women's auxiliary organizations, it has again been found.

Herr Hitler Threatened To Kill Himself If Plans Failed

Commenting upon Hitler's speech to the Reichstag in which he dramatically declared that "I again put on the uniform which once was most sacred and dearest to me" and "I will take it off only after victory," a writer in the New York Post remarks that Hitler uttered almost identical sentiments 16 years ago when he joined a group of party associates to join him in the famous Bierbrauhaus putch.

"You must fight with me," he cried at that time. "You must win with me or die with me. If this goes wrong, there are four bullets in my pistol—three for my associates if they desert me, the last for myself." And speaking, he held his revolver to his head.

The putch was carried out and failed. Ludendorff, who had been tricked into the affair, walked calmly through the crowds into the hands of the police.

Adolf Hitler threw himself to the ground when the first shot was fired. In failing he bruised his arm, but did not keep him from running. He found his car and drove it to the home of his friend, Hanfstaengl (Putz), thence to Erling in the mountains where he hid until the police discovered him.

Rudolph Olden tells this story in his famous Hitler biography. Is it prophetic?—Brookville Recorder and Times.

OCTOBER 1

THE INFANCY OF JESUS

Golden text: And they shall call his name Immanuel; which is, being interpreted, God with us. Matthew 2:23.

Lesson: Matthew 1 and 2. Devotional reading: Isaiah 9:1-7.

Explanations and Comments

The Flight into Egypt, Matthew 2:13-15. After offering to the Babe his gifts, the Wise-men returned to their country by another way, having been warned in a dream to avoid Jerusalem and Herod. Joseph, too, had a dream, which warned him that Herod would seek the Babe's life, and directed him to save the Babe and his mother by fleeing to Egypt. "The young child and his mother"; Mary and Joseph were but humble ministers of the child's. The partial instructions given, the darkness lying over the future, are in accordance with the methods of God's leading, which always gives light enough for the next duty, and never for the one after that. The flight was beyond Herod's jurisdiction, and there the family remained until Herod's death, a few months later.

The Slaughter of the Innocents, Matthew 2:16-18. Herod sent his soldiers to kill every child of two years old and under in Bethlehem and round about that city. "As well might one be tempted to cut a mountain of adamant asunder as cut the chain of divine purposes."

"It has been objected to the probable truth of this statement that such an event could hardly fail to be recorded by secular historians, and especially by Josephus, who narrates the contemporaneous history with such minuteness. But this event is far more striking upon our imagination now than it was likely to be upon the attention of men then. For as Bethlehem was a mere hamlet, with but a handful of people, it has been computed that not more than twenty or thirty could have been perished by this merciless edict. Besides, what was such an act as this, as a life stored full of abominable cruelties?"

The Return to Nazareth, and the Death of Herod, Matthew 2:19-23. Upon the death of Herod, Joseph was made aware by another dream of the fact and that it was safe now to return to his native land. He quickly started back with the Babe and his mother, but when he learned that Archelaus was on the throne of Judea he feared to go there.

Joseph and his family went on to a town called Nazareth, a better son of Herod, ruled; that it might be fulfilled which was spoken through the prophets, that he should be called a Nazarene.

Meaning Of Close Duty

Private Secretaries Of The King Always Ready For Call

When the King arrived at Weymouth during the summer to review the Reserve Fleet he was accompanied by Sir Alan Lascelles, when he left he was accompanied by Sir Eric Mervill. This is the explanation: It was the usual change-over of private secretaries on "close duty". They work on a rota, says the London Daily Sketch. Close duty means that the secretary concerned makes no personal engagements; he is always at hand if wanted. When the Court is at Balmoral only one private secretary is with the King. Another attends Buckingham Palace daily to forward important correspondence.

Air Marshal Bishop, V.C., Advisor To The Defence Ministry

Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., is now serving the Defence Ministry as a full-time advisor on air matters, it was learned at Ottawa.

His duties are to advise the Government on all phases of military aviation. An inspection of the various flying units across the country will be one of the first major items on his program.

As chairman of the Air Advisory Committee, Air Marshal Bishop did inspection work on a purely voluntary basis during the past year. Now, with the country at war, he will devote his full time to such work.

Tired Chasing Bears

Woman In B.C. Cannot Get Rid Of Man-eating Animals

Mrs. David Jones told police she objects to having "to fight off a dozen seven-foot bears" in order to get a few ears of corn for dinner." She said families of bears have taken a fancy to some special seed corn and even climb apple trees on her farm near Lillooet, B.C.

Several have been chased away by shotgun blasts, she said, but they continue to come back.

Constable John A. French, game warden, farmers and Indians have formed a party to track down the bears.

WATCH YOUR HEART

By the time definite heart signs appear, be it pain, tightness under the sternum (breast bone) pain to the left of the heart and down the left arm, some damage has been done. In some cases there are signs of so-called indigestion, shortness of breath, after effort, after exertion or inability to lie on the same low pillow you have always been used to.

The foregoing are warning signs that you can no longer keep step with the younger generation. You may heart change your manner of living and avoid over-exertion. Work and play must be regulated so that you get enough but not too much physical exercise. A moderate amount of outdoor exercise will be good for you, but it must not be violent. Pulling, straining, heavy lifting and rushing around must be avoided. The weight should be kept down. Too much bulk is a strain on the heart.

What about the use of tobacco? No heart specialist will tell you that a moderate amount of smoking will do no harm. The minority say that tobacco tightens up the blood vessels and adds to the work of the heart. Experience teaches that most men beyond 50 can no longer tolerate the number of cigars or pipes they formerly consumed. Perhaps it is safe to say that three pipes or an equal number of light cigars per day will do little or no harm to most individuals. There are exceptions and if he finds an increase in symptoms after using tobacco it will be wisdom to drop the habit. Remember the final injunction: After middle age have your heart examined by a competent doctor at least once a year.

Built On New Principle

Rockefeller Institute Will Use Artificial Heart For Medical Research

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has announced a new kind of artificial heart, in which several living organs can be kept alive simultaneously.

It is built on a new principle and for the first time makes organized artificial life possible. The heart resembles an hour-glass. It is one piece of blown glass, the bottom chamber being the conventional hour-glass form, while the top chamber is rounded.

The tissues to be kept alive are placed on the flat bottom of the lower chamber. Above, the upper chamber is packed with artificial blood. This red fluid flows up and down between chambers.

Kept at body temperature gases are used to drive the blood through the heart. They enter the glass through a sterile door made of cotton fibres.

The bases are not only of driving power for the heart, but also the air for the living tissues. The exhausted air passes out through another cotton filter door.

Colonel Lindbergh publishes the details in the Journal of Experimental Medicine. He made the heart for the Rockefeller Institute for medical research. A note states it has been used successfully at the institute in unpublished experiments by Raymond C. Parker. Lindbergh's previous artificial hearts were made for Dr. Alexis Carrel, who retires this year.

An Unusual Accident

THE RIVER OF SKULLS

It was July, the Montagnais "Moon When the Birds Mourn", and the trade was at its height at Fort George. Gradually the coast crews were taking their families to summer fishing camps on the coast islands where the Hearne's salmon, sea-trout and whitefish were schooling before ascending the rivers to their spawning grounds, and where the Canala gress, pinnal and black duck would flock with their new broods. Remnants of the great icefield from Hudson's Straits, Fox Channel and the Bay of God's Mercy which had beset the coast in the spring, now drifted far in the great bay, slowly vanishing under the sun and the warm rain winds.

The remaining days of his stay were busy ones for Alan. There were supplies to be carefully checked, all of which he bought with his credit at the posts. The money McCord had given him he hid carefully under the floor of his cabin. The extra flour, beans and sugar Noel got through Montagnais as well as the extra gift-net which might come day, in the heart of the unknown country, save their lives. Fearing the havoc which the tongue of Mrs. Hanbury had undoubtedly created at the Revillon Freres through the oily Rivard, for days Alan avoided the parting with Berthe. But at last, hungering for the sight of her face, driven by the desire to defend himself, he went to the Revillon Freres.

Gabriel Dessane and Pierre were busy with Indians, so Alan waited until the factor was free. As he lounged against the counter, Arsene Rivard entered the room, saw Alan, flushed and went at once to the desk behind the counter where he busied himself with an account book.

So she's been here, surmised Cameron. Berthe knows Mrs. Hanbury came to my house. Rivard's lost no time telling her mother some wild lie about that call. There's little chance for me now, with Berthe. Finishing with the Indian, Gabriel Dessane approached Alan and gave him a hearty handshake. "How are you, Alan? They tell me you got the dogs you were after. Come outside where I can talk to you."

In the empty clearing Dessane began: "You start with the police this week McCuen tells me. That is good!"

"Good?" protested Alan. "I can't help myself, can I?"

"No, but you got to White put yourself in a bad light here, Alan. Everyone thinks you met this McCord."

"Do you?" Alan looked hard at the kindly Frenchman.

"You say you did not. For me that is sufficient." The other smiled inscrutably into Cameron's level eyes.

"I came to say good-bye to Berthe—she's turned against me. The other night she heard I had talked to Mrs. Hanbury and was jealous."

Madame Dessane, Rivard, they've been working on her."

Gabriel Dessane raised both arms to the skies in an eloquent gesture.

"Mon Dieu, what that Madame Hanbury has done at Fort George! My wife to me will speak hardly at all. Tienes Alan, it is terrible!"

Alan smiled at the older man's vehemence.

"She tried to get information the night I was here and, three nights ago, she came to my house and—"

"And what, Alan?" Gabriel Dessane was interested.

"Well, she may be a government agent but—"

"Go on, Alan."

"She tried her best to make me talk some day."

Dessane seemed disappointed. He frowned at the distant hills across the great river. "She has been at me to attempt to learn from you if you met this McCord—and to find out where. She is a pretty woman, yes—a pretty woman," he said with a sigh. "She has made much trouble for me."

"Now about Rivard," demanded Alan, immersed in his own problem. "You know how I feel toward Berthe. Do-do you object to my hoping—that some day—"

The older man placed his hand kindly on Alan's shoulder.

"There is much time yet, Alan. You are both young—too young. You have your way to make—"

"But Rivard, he's wasting no time," Alan declared, vehemently. "Are you his friend or mine?"

Dessane's face sobered. "Rivard is sent here by the company. His family has influence. I am helpless. And there is Madame Dessane! She is very difficult."

"I see," replied Cameron, with a shrug. "I'm a poor man—a hunter, without a decent home to give her. Rivard will go up in the Company. I see! Well, I'll go and say good-bye to her!"

"You must not forget that you are under a cloud here—the police may make serious trouble for you, but Berthe will see you. She is not happy. She does not know what to think."

Alan started to move away, then turned to the older man. "Oh, I want to ask you a question. When you were at Fort Chimo did you ever hear of the River of Skulls?"

Dessane stood for a time with knit brows, seemingly groping deep in his memory. "I recall, now, an old Naskapi once told me about a battle between the Huskies and the Indians," he answered. "They exterminated each other. And their spirits now moan in the gorge near where the light took place. He said some of the bones and skulls are still found along the shore. But the Indians were afraid of this moaning gorge, Manitou Gorge, the Gorge of the Spirits, as they called it, and most of them avoided it there."

"Was this river far in the interior, south of Chimo?"

Oh, yes, deep in the caribou barrens. He said it was a branch of the Kokoski, but no white man has ever been there. It's a country where even the Indians starve when they miss the deer migrations."

Alan bade the trader good-bye, then, braving the atony face of Madame Dessane, went dejectedly to say his farewell to Berthe. At the door where once he had been welcome he was kept waiting by what, judging from the sound, appeared to be a heated argument, punctuated by the shrill voice of his friend, little Man-

on. At last the door was opened by Berthe.

"I am leaving in a few days," he said, probing her dark eyes in an attempt to read her thoughts. "I've come to say good-bye, Berthe."

"Come in, Alan," he said, with a faint smile.

"Berthe," he began, "I can't go with you feeling this way! It's all Rivard and this woman, I know. You don't understand what she's up to."

"I understand this much," the girl retorted bitterly. "She was at your house. She boasted to Madame Martin, at the Northern Trading Company, that she had twisted you round her little finger! Berthe flung back caustically, her black eyes snapping as blood flushed her dark face."

There were tears in his eyes as he watched her wrestle with pride and doubt and the loyalty of years.

"Oh, it's not that! You're wrong! It's not this woman!" she protested. "It's your suddenly going up the coast when you'd been away—so long! You went to see Neil Campbell! You know you did! Everyone believes it! It's that you went away and did not tell me the truth. You couldn't care so much for me and do that. It's that I've lost faith in you—that's all!" With a sob and a faint "Good-bye, Alan!" Berthe ran from the room.

CHAPTER VI.

There were only a few friends to bid Alan and Noel good-bye on the beach the Hudson's Bay Company when they loaded their canoe for the long trip to the headwaters. But, at the Revillon Freres, the entire population watched Trudeau and Goyette, McQueen's helpers, with two hired Montagnais canoe-men, stow the outfit in the two police canoes. Noel, then, Dessane and Rivard talked to McQueen, Slade and Mrs. Hanbury.

Shortly, the police and the woman who had turned Fort George into a hotbed of gossip withdrew from the group and talked, huddled together, in low tones. Then, after hurried good-bys, the two boats headed for the far shore where Alan, with his four Ungavars running the beach, was riding the flood tide.

Later, in front of the Northern Trading Company, a sea-plane taxied up the river, lifted, then in a long loop returned and passed over the police canoes.

Three days upstream, where the Big River roars down from high plateaus a series of falls and chutes and the Indian trail, for a hundred miles, follows a chain of lakes, Alan brought McQueen and Slade to his camp.

"We're going to see a lot of each other in the next few months," began the older officer, "why can't I shake hands on this and be friendly?"

"What do you mean, friendly?" demanded Alan, studying the insinuating, close-set eyes of the other. "You're police. You can give me orders."

Day after day, the men sailed at pole, paddle and tracking line as they ascended the great river. As the August days drew to a close and the nights sharpened with frost, the canoes reached the forks in the high tundra country. Northeast, three days hard poling up the strong water of the Mad River, was Alan's hunting country.

Fifty miles to the east, on the Talking, stood a cabin in a clearing where a man waited with a girl for the coming of a canoe. Far to the south, the great lakes Nicheun and Patemisk (to be named) to the Conjuror, the largest of the three branches.

Willing To Serve

Vancouver Aviatix Helped Train South African Air Force Reserves

Helen Harrison, who has an unruly head of light-brown curls and 1,200 flying hours to her credit, is willing to train aviators to serve in the war.

The Vancouver-born girl, who gave stunning displays in her yellow "Moth" plane at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, is a licensed instructor and helped train 1,000 men for the South African air force reserves.

Six years ago she went up for a joy-ride and promptly decided to make a career of it. That was in England, where she was educated.

She said she may possibly be used to help train men for the Royal Canadian Air Force but nothing definite yet. Miss Harrison said she would serve as a pilot for war duties if she was called upon.

Archaeological excavations reveal stone and clay torch-holding devices and lamps were among the first articles which man made for domestic use.

An automobile at sixty miles an hour moves 80 feet per second, thus putting the hospital just around the corner.

Father Of Poultry Industry

Sir Edward Brown Founded British Poultry Club In 1877

Because of the war crisis the recent death of Sir Edward Brown went almost unnoticed. Poultrymen the world over owe a great deal to Sir Edward who has been called the Father of the poultry industry. It was for his services to the poultry industry that he was knighted nine years ago.

Edward Brown was born 87 years ago. He was the son of a miller, and in travelling around selling feed he became interested in poultry. An amateur breeder himself, he founded the British Poultry Club in 1877. A man with a scientific mind and a writer of much charm, he wrote books on poultry which have enlightened and inspired poultrymen in every country.

He was a pioneer in the understanding the meaning of genetics, a production from generation to generation—he had, by means of advanced biological research and experiment, raised poultry breeding to a national asset.

He established a poultry research institute before agricultural colleges thought of such a thing. He founded the World Poultry Science Association and was the means of starting those World Poultry Congresses which have been held in all parts of the world. The first being at Ottawa in 1921; the Congress met at Hague not long ago.

Poultry rearing is a peaceful occupation although it does not seem to have much bearing on peace. Yet Sir Edward was an ardent apostle of international peace and tried to steer those events in that direction by encouraging friendly co-operation between breeders by exchange of letters and exchange of stock.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Value Of Gliding

Motorless Flight In Heavier Than Air Machines

Among the heroic exploits during Poland's brave defense of Warsaw must be listed the daring air flight of Second-Lieutenant Palusinski, who engaged single-handed 12 German bombers as they were dropping explosives on the city. Lieut. Palusinski managed to shoot down one of the raiders before his own ship was disabled and began to fall.

At that point in the infernally courageous incident, Lieut. Palusinski turned to his long experience as a glider and succeeded in getting his disabled plane under control. He landed it, even though it was wounded, with nothing more than a severe shaking up.

For some ten years now the art of gliding, or motorless flight in heavier-than-air machines, has had the attention of serious-minded aviators. It has proven its value by making records for both long-distanced and sustained soaring. And most aviators who have been flying for any length of time are familiar with the necessary technique.

Lieut. Palusinski's experience, then, is a hint that air commanders would be not slow to take. The gliding potentialities of each combat machine will be carefully estimated, and fighting pilots will certainly make the most of them. Many machines and what is more important still, many lives will thus be saved through the knowledge gained by peace-time gliding.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Protection For Docks

Britain Made Wartime Plans To Keep Them All Working

There are now fewer than 285 docks in Britain and dock and harbor officials worked out plans for the Board of Trade to keep the ports working in war emergency.

These draft schemes—one for each of the docks—involves the protection of the docks and warehouses and the improvement of rail and road communications, the building of additional berths and warehouses and the installation of new plant.

Shipping may have to be diverted to the West in some situations. Swansea submitted a plan to provide an additional entrance to the docks.

Port of Lambton officials had under consideration various proposals for camouflaging the river, and the Tyne Improvement Commission scheme included an elaborate system of air-raid shelters and trenches.

Sleep Was Costly

Man Taking Nap Lost Large Bet By One Hour

The costly drawbacks of a well-fed Bogense village restaurant keeper almost pushed war news off Copenhagen front pages recently. The restaurateur kept had 5,000 crowns (about $50) he could walk around the outside of Denmark in three months, pulling the nation's oldest car. With one day to spare and only three miles to go he stopped at an inn and enjoyed a pre-victory feast. Then he overslept and lost the bet by an hour.

Returned To Madrid Art treasures of Madrid's Prado museum, sent out of Spain during the civil war by the Republican Government, have been returned to the national regime. The paintings were taken from Geneva by special train across France.

The United States built thousands of torpedoes for use in the World War, but very few actually were used, since hostilities ceased soon after their construction.

Philadelphia's baby elephant that recently arrived from Burma is believed the smallest now in America.

The Same To-Day

Britain Fighting For Security As She Did 150 Years Ago

It is interesting to recall the fiery speech of Pitt, prime minister of England, 150 years ago, who, like the great Chamberlain of to-day, was the general directing affairs at home when the nation was fighting Napoleon.

The occasion of Pitt's speech was a query—one that comes from a man whose chief desire seems to be that he might have something to say at a critical time. Tierney, the man who asked the question, asked Pitt to state what the country was really fighting for. The absurdity of this question was painfully apparent, but Pitt was ready, not with a carefully prepared speech, where each sentence had been weighed and measured, but with an impromptu deliverance that has never been forgotten in history.

His reply to Tierney, strange as it might seem, would be a reply to anyone asking the same question to-day. It was:

"The honorable member," said Pitt, bending angry brows upon his interlocutor, "desires me to state in one sentence the object of the war. I know not whether I can do it in one sentence; but in one word I can tell him that it is security; security against a danger, the greatest that ever threatened the world. It is security against a danger which never existed in any past period of society. It is security against a danger which in degree and extent was never equalled; against a danger which threatened all the nations of the earth; a danger which has been relayed by all the nations of Europe, and related by none with so much success as by this nation, because by none has it been resisted so uniformly and with so much energy."

Yugoslavia's Boy King

Is Being Trained To Become Country's Supreme War Lord

Little King Peter, who refuses to hunt because he cannot bear to shoot a rabbit, is studying to become supreme war lord of his 15,000,000 subjects in Yugoslavia.

The shy, sensitive boy, whose widowed mother calls him "Baby Petruska," has been enrolled as a buck private in one of the world's toughest armies. In two years he must become commander-in-chief of the nation's army.

The 15-year-old monarch is in striking contrast to the sun-tanned, rawboned, broad-shouldered youths who serve in his legions. Peter has big brown eyes and delicate, almost feminine features.

His grandmother, the late Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, once remarked: "What a beautiful girl he would have made if he were not such a handsome boy!"

King Peter will receive the crown from his uncle, Regent Prince Paul, on his eighteenth birthday—Sept. 6, 1941. His classical education completed this spring, he must cram many years of military experience in the next two years.

Like other Yugoslav boys, he has received no preliminary military training for the government considers such instruction unnecessary for its youth. Every Yugoslav is considered a natural soldier because his country has waged centuries of internal struggle and guerrilla warfare against the Turks and other people.

Unlike other Yugoslav boys, however, King Peter will do his military studying at home. The faculty of the Belgrade Military School will come to his marble palace outside the city for his arduous task allows no time for entering barracks.

Destined For England

Italian Firms Ship Food Supplies Via French Channel Ports

It was learned in Basel, Switzerland, that a large part of the food supplies which come out of Italy by way of the St. Gothard Pass were destined for England via French Channel Ports.

Swiss agents of Italian shippers reported that Italian firms already held so many blocked credits in Germany that they preferred to send foodstuffs to Britain for cash, rather than take more German coal in exchange.

Down in Nova Scotia they have begun to teach people how to speak Gaelic. Elsewhere we seem to continue to need instruction in how to speak English.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

A Visit to Barkerville

Mr. Arthur Reid recently motored to Barkerville, B. C., where his son Harold, and wife, (formerly Miss Jean Pattinson) live. It is probably the oldest mining town in the interior, and the first road into it from the coast, a distance of several hundred miles, was built by the Royal engineers, at that time garrisoned in Vancouver. The Masonic temple in Barkerville bears the date 1869, and the district was at one time a famous gold mining area. In latter years mining was revived there, and a program of a recent sports day indicated that there is plenty of life and kick to the old town. Liberal cash prizes were offered, as well as a number of cases of beer as consolation prizes. Mr. Reid motored about 2300 miles during his holidays, visiting Vancouver and other places on the coast.

Where It Costs Less To Be Better Dressed

The Church Is Not

The Church is not made up of people who think they are better than the rest, but of people who know they ought to be better than they are, and belong to the Church because it is trying to help them to be better.

The Church is not made up of people who think they are perfect, but of people who are sure that they have found the perfect ideal in Jesus of Nazareth.

The Church is not made up of people who think they never make any mistakes, but of people who have recognized their wrong-doing and have joined the Church in the belief that it will help them avoid wrong-doing.

The Church is not trying to tell people what they must believe, but it is trying to tell them what they can believe, and what a difference it will make in their life if they do believe these things.

The Church is not trying to take the joy out of life, but is trying to put a joy into every man's life that will last through all of time.—Bowmanville Statesman.

Fernie's Member Visits Coleman

The inimitable Tom Uphill, M.L.A. for Fernie since 1920, second in years of membership of the provincial legislature of British Columbia to Premier Pattullo, was in town on Saturday, accompanied by his wife. He has been an outstanding individual in the house at Victoria, and hardly a session passes without he catches a column of space in the provincial dailies. It looks as if he is a fixture as Fernie's member as long as he lives, for he has had opponents galore, but he manages to get the votes of the fathers and the mothers and all their children sufficiently old to vote, and urges them to vote early and as often as they can. His geniality is a fine asset, particularly to a politician such as he.
